Burr Withdraws Store; Robison Is New Outlet Here

Consolidation of Wholesalers Bring About Local Change.

STATE BURR POLICY

More Interested in Groups of Independents Than Chains.

Local merchants and shoppers received with considerable surprise Monday the news that the plans for the new L. C. Burr & Co. department store, as announced recently in the Star, have been definitely withdrawn. As was generally known, the L. C. Burr & Co. department stores are a subsidiary of the nationwide wholesale house of Butler Brothers. The withdrawal of their store here after several months of preparation for the opening which was to take place this Saturday, reflects this concern's historic policy of honesty and the fair treatment of every customer, according to the management.

Still Favor City

"We certainly have not changed our good opinion of the City of Hope, but due to an unusual combination of circumstances our withdrawal of this store is now strictly a matter of Butler Brothers policy," stated Leslie White, district manager.

The "combination of circumstances" referred to is Butler Brothers' recent acquisition of the American Wholesale Corporation of Baltimore, increasing the Butler Brothers nationwide chain of wholesale distributing warehouses to seven.

Robison Store Satisfactory

The local Geo. W. Robison department store has been for many years one of the leading customers of the American Wholesale Corporation and now automatically becomes an outstanding customer of Butler Brothers. Inasmuch as the Geo. W. Robison department store is providing a satisfactory outlet for Butler Brothers' merchandise in this territory his concern now feels no necessity for opening another store here in Hope.

Will Retain Lease

The lease for the L. C. Burr & Co. location was signed previously to the purchase of the American Wholesale Corporation by Butler Brothers. The lease will be retained, said Mr. White, until such time as it can be suitably transferred.

"Butler Brothers is one of the largest wholesale organizations in the country and has unusual buying power and distributing facilities," stated Mr. White. "Naturally it is constantly seeking to improve and enlarge its merchandise outlets, through the local retail stores."

"In recent years however, chain store organizations, performing the functions of wholesaling, distributing and warehousing for themselves, have usurped many of these outlets."

Butler's Organized Independents
"To counteract this tendency Butler Brothers have organized hundreds of independent merchants into a vast federated nationwide league in order that they can enjoy all the advantages of the chain system. In addition, Butler Brothers have created many of their own retail outlets. These outlets are known as the L. C. Burr & Co. stores, one of which was almost ready to open here in Hope this Saturday."

Serve Community Needs

"However, there is just so much capital and wealth in every community," continued Mr. White. "And this of course determines the buying power and the number and size of the retail stores which can, when operating at full efficiency carry on a profitable business in that community."

"It there is already a store in a city, merchandising Butler Brothers' merchandise and serving a community efficiently and well, then Butler Brothers have no desire to bring another store of its own into the territory."

"Such is now the condition in Hope," concluded Mr. White, "since the American Wholesale Corporation, of which the local Geo. W. Robison department store is a star customer, was acquired by Butler Brothers."

ELKS MEET TONIGHT

The Elks club will hold a business meeting Monday night, at the club rooms, and all members are urged to attend.

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 17.—The Board of Directors of the Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanatorium, located at Booneville, have selected Dr. J. D. Riley, formerly Ashley county physician, but for the past nine years chief of the Southern Baptist Sanatorium of El Paso, Tex., as superintendent of the Booneville Sanatorium. J. F. Dr. Riley will succeed Dr. John Stewart who died recently after 13 years as head of the institution.

Nine years ago Dr. Riley took charge of the El Paso sanatorium and has been there continuously since. Adkins, former sheriff, who was under Dr. Riley's care for six months.

Undercover Agent Springs Noon Raid

United States Marshal Leads Large Squad on Wind-Up of Liquor Campaign Under Way Here Since January 1

Federal prohibition men swooped down on Hope today noon and jailed I. H. Russell, of South Elm street, on a warrant charging him with operating a retail liquor store.

Russell, who is in the city jail, faces prosecution under the new Jones law for selling liquor, a felony, and for concealing liquor, which he will be charged with in a warrant to be issued later, according to the federal agents.

He is charged specifically with making eight sales to a government undercover man who has been in Hope since January 1.

Crowd of Officers

The raid on the Russell house was made by Deputy United States Marshal Clarence Beaulieu, Deputy Constable Jim Bearden, and the following other officers: Prohibition Agents Quillan, Jones and Fincher, Chief of Police Clarence Baker and Policemen Brice Arnett.

Russell was not in the house at the time, but was arrested later by Beaulieu and Bearden and taken to the city jail.

Officers reported they found several half-gallon jars of liquor in the piano at the house, and many pints hidden in other parts of the residence. A large quantity of the liquor was carried away by the officers for federal evidence, and the seizure of Russell a short time later, added to the sensation which the raid produced.

Federal Aid Asked

Jim Bearden, who was credited with working up evidence which led to the federal men's invasion of the city, said that he would ask the federal prohibition director for "Weed" Arkansas who is stationed at Fort Smith, last July, asking for a suitable undercover man to get evidence against local bootleggers.

Gurley recalled that he had only one man who wasn't known here, according to Bearden, and he was tied up in various court cases then pending. Bearden said the undercover man came in here, however, the first of the year, and in a few weeks completed his evidence.

The finishing touch, according to officers, occurred when the full crew of federal agents arrived today and began their raids.

He is an ex-service man, seeing two years of service, eight months of which was spent overseas. Upon his return home Mr. White immediately took charge of his farm north of the city, in DeRoan township, where he has been interested in improved agriculture ever since.

"Should I be elected," he said, "I would expect to give the taxpayers a constructive, economical and business-like administration. I realize that very much depends on me, but much also counts on the co-operation of all our citizens. I would hope to be the kind of public official who would invite and secure the co-operation of citizens in all parts of the county."

WOOSTER, Ohio, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Expectation of finding the body of Melvin Horst, aged four, by digging up the back yard of the home of Charles Hanna, was abandoned at 9:35 a. m. today.

Sounds Like an Invitation

FROM the tone of the letter which The Star published Saturday from Sanford Bates, superintendent of the federal prison service in the Department of Justice, it appears that the federal government is inviting bids from aggressive cities who would like to locate the new federal reformatory in their trading area.

How well Hope is qualified to bid for this project appears in one paragraph of the letter. "It would seem desirable," Mr. Bates writes, "to locate the reformatory as nearly as possible to the center of the territory (west of the Mississippi) which will furnish the population of that institution. Generally speaking we believe that there should be at least 1,000 acres in the plot; it should be located within a short distance of a trunk line railroad; the soil conditions should be such as to lend themselves to agricultural development; it should not be too near a large city and yet be near enough to a town or city of moderate size."

There are more desirable projects than federal penitentiaries, of course, but the business of maintaining and feeding a federal institution requires the resources of a small town itself. Without a doubt this plant will contribute immediately and heavily to the trade and wealth of whatever city obtains it.

With farm land prices at low ebb, anything that helps to build up the local market will also help Hempstead county agriculture.

The proposed reformatory is worth going after, and with its superb railroad connections and ideal community organization Hope should have an excellent chance of getting it—if it can be brought anywhere in Arkansas.

Why the Problem Is Hard

IT IS impossible to understand the difficulties that surround the London naval conference without considering the political considerations that encompass the various delegations.

The United States delegation is the least affected, since President Hoover's political future can hardly be ruined by failure to reach an agreement at London. But for the other, political life or death hinges upon the outcome of the meeting.

MacDonald of England faces an unemployment problem that constantly grows worse. If he can get a naval pact that will enable Britain to reduce naval expenditures, and hence devote more money to the unemployed without raising the tax rate, his future is assured. If not, he probably will go out of office.

Tardieu of France is kept in power by a political coalition that insists on France's right to build submarines and cruisers in any amount she chooses. If he accepts a treaty limiting France's rights in that respect he, too, will probably lose his place.

Mussolini has persuaded the Italians that they must have naval parity with France. If the conference fails to give it to them Mussolini's prestige at home will receive the first major blow it has had since he took office.

The Japanese cabinet, likewise, has persuaded the Japanese people that the 10-10-7 cruiser ratio is vital to Japan's security. If this ratio is not embodied in the final agreement, a new Japanese cabinet would be almost certain.

Thus each delegation—except, perhaps, the American—is faced by insistent political considerations. Each delegation, in short, is compelled by politics to reject all compromises. Yet the various national claims conflict so that if there are no compromises there can be no treaty. And no delegation is quite willing to face that eventuality.

That is why the London problem is so extraordinarily difficult.

Killing a Woman

ARIZONA seems determined to execute Mrs. Eva Dugan, the 52-year-old woman who has been accused of murdering the rancher for whom she worked. The board of pardons and appeals has denied her plea for clemency, and the date of her execution is near at hand.

The new "sex equality" that has come into vogue is a development a little less repugnant to public sentiment than it would once have been. Nevertheless, the execution of a woman is bound to be a disagreeable shock to a large proportion of the population. We have not quite reached the point where we are altogether willing to treat a woman as harshly as we treat a man.

If Mrs. Dugan's sentence were commuted to life imprisonment, it is probably that most people would feel better about it.

Gosh! Doesn't That Make Your Mouth Water?

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The country teems with amateur lobbyists who are not affected by the investigation of the Caravan committee despite a slight activity directed at influencing legislation. These are the signers of petitions to Congress. Their petitions pour in and are commonly cited in the Congressional Record by the member in whose care they are addressed. Each is referred to the appropriate committee.

The House alone has received about 4000 petitions during the present regular session, which began December 5. The Senate doesn't get so many. Most such petitions are similar to others and obviously inspired by some national association which has called on all its member groups to get busy petitioning Congress. If petitions arrive in sufficiently large numbers the committee considering the proposed legislation is bound to be impressed with the idea that a considerable portion of the electorate is interested. Amateur lobbyists who sign them can be found supporting or opposing anything and everything.

Lately there has been a flood of pleas from "sundry citizens" in many widely separated communities "praying for the passage" of legislation granting increased pensions to Spanish War veterans.

Further pension legislation is often asked for Civil War veterans and their widows. A recent petition mailed by the Woman's Relief Corps in Boston bore 2333 signatures.

The city council of Salem, Mass., wants legislation instructing the president to proclaim every October 11 as General Pulaski's memorial day. The Rodeph Solomon Sisterhood in Congressman Sol Bloom's New York City district opposes American participation in any calendar simplification conference, unless our delegation is bound to oppose any plan "which endangers the fixity of the Sabbath." Various locals of the Musicians' Union petition in behalf of the Army Band bill.

Two hundred folks in Washington county, Ark., support a bill to appropriate $50,000,000 a year to maintain rural post roads not now in the federal road system. Minnesota dairymen urge speedy enactment of a bill classifying certain commercial cooking compounds as oleomargarine. North Dakota branches of the General Federation of Women's Clubs present 62 resolutions favoring prompt ratification of the World Court protocol. Twenty-six Philadelphians ask compensation benefits for war veterans who developed active tuberculosis before 1930. The South Shore Country Club of Buffalo, N. Y., asks repeal of the tax on dues and initiation fees paid to athletic and sporting clubs.

President William Henry Bauman of the Continental Mortgage Guaranty Co. of New York opposes the bill to establish a federal building loan board in the Treasury Department. Two hundred and thirty-eight citizens of Greene county, Ill., protest against taking Station KWKH of Shreveport, La., off the air. Franco-Belgian citizens of Lawrence, Mass., ask modification of the Volstead act and relief for great unemployment and suffering among the working people of the textile industry. The Linnaean Society of New York asks federal protection for the American eagle. Citizens of Braddock and North Braddock, Pa., urge a federal department of education.

Spanish War pension petitions have outnumbered all others lately by about 10 to 1. World Court ratification and Pulaski Day have been the next most popular subjects.

One of these days Senator Brookhart or Senator Borah is going to discover a saloon.

He said that the market for tomatoes is so great that a few more would have large profits.

Terracing School Tour This Week

At Bingen and McCaskill Thursday, Agent Smith Announces.

Country Agent Lynn Smith is making an attempt to conduct terracing schools in as many communities as convenient in an effort to teach those who care to learn how to use the power of farm level and how to build the type of terrace recommended by the Extension Service. Since the aim of the schools is to teach by demonstration the proper methods those in each community who desire to learn are urged to attend these schools in view of the fact that the County Agent cannot go to each farm for a school.

In reality terracing should be done in the fall of the year.

Dates of the terracing schools are as follows:

- Monday 17--Terracing school, Hinton.
- Cotton Meetings, Providence (Night)
- Tuesday 18--Prescott, Cheese factory milk route.
- Wednesday 19--Agricultural Outlook Meeting, Hope.
- Truck meeting Sardis (Night)
- Thursday 20--Bingen and McCaskill.
- Friday 21--H. Club Spring Hill.

A Love Rewarded

Editor's Note: The following short story, in three parts, was written by Lillie Belle Loe, a pupil in the ninth grade of Blevins High School.

"Well, that's done," said Lorene Sherman as she straightened to survey her finished work. She had been house cleaning and had done it with a thoroughness that would have, at first glance, surprised you, but had you looked more closely and noted the small firm chin, the sweet mouth, the clear, dark, blue eyes, the fair face framed by a mass of wavy, brown hair, and had you also noted the small, deft hands and the capable little shoulders, you would have decided that it was not so surprising after all.

Then Lorene heard a noise at the front of the house and went to investigate. She found Jack and June, the twins, waging a losing battle against Bill, while fourteen-year-old Bessie watched with a haughty manner.

Just then, in some way explainable to Jack only--Jack's feet became entangled in Bessie's long legs and she turned a neat hand-spring and landed in a comfortable, but undignified heap in a flower pot. At this the twins gave up the fight and turned to Lorene, their blue eyes full of mischief.

"Lorene, may we go in?" swimming?" asked Jack.

"Please, Lorene," seconded June.

"Yes, if Bill and Bess will go with you," she told them laughing.

"Oh, I'll take you if you'll be have," said Bill, his brown curls much ruffled from his recent struggle with the twins.

You'd better learn to behave your self. The last time we went in you tried to show us how well you could dive and smashed your nose against a rock," replied Bessie scornfully.

With that they were off. Lorene, with pride in her eyes watched them go--Bill, tall, looking all of his sixteen years; Bessie, with her dancing black eyes, and black locks that never looked as if they were combed; then Jack and June who resembled Lorene herself.

Their mother had died when Lorene was sixteen and three years later their father had answered the same call. So for the last two years the burden of the family had fallen upon Lorene's small shoulders. They had not been light by any means but she had always had two real friends to encourage and help her over the hard places. Donald Kent and his mother had certainly been friends to Lorene and the children. Mrs. Kent, a sweet-faced, middle-aged woman, had been one of her mother's best friends. Donald, with his sunny, blue eyes, blonde curly hair and friendly ways, had grown up with Lorene.

She never knew when she began loving him. Perhaps it was when they played together as children, or maybe when they were in high school together. Anyway Lorene knew she loved Donald Kent as she loved no one else on earth and that he loved another girl. True, it was Lorene whom he always called his little pal, to her he came with all his joys and sorrows, or when Agnes treated him coolly, but he always went back to Agnes the minute she relented.

Agnes was the only child of the wealthy Vaughns and her every whim and wish had always been gratified. She was tall, a decided brunette, and could be very charming when she chose to be. Donald had been her devoted slave since the apple and primer stage.

Her faults were as nothing to him. All he could see was her beauty and charm.

Lorene hid her love for him and tried to be only a friend. She reviewed all this in her mind as she sat on the porch that afternoon looking out across the fields and cool, shady grounds of the place where she had been born. She could hear the children shouting and laughing as they played in the brook at the back of their house. On one side of their house was the Kent plantation. How peaceful and serene the world looked! Suddenly rousing her from the reverie, she saw a cloud of dust approaching. She knew this to be "Don" in his yellow roadster, "The Speedster" as he laughingly called it. As he drew nearer and saw Lorene sitting on the porch, he waved, then turned into the drive. He stopped the car and was out before Lorene could speak.

"Well, Rena,"--Rena was his pet name for her--"How's Trix today?" he inquired, his blue eyes dancing.

"And what have you been doing?"

"Well," answered Lorene with mock seriousness, "I've cooked two meals and cleaned house."

"Is that all?" trying to look severe.

"Now listen to what I've done: I ate my breakfast, read awhile, went to town, saw Agnes, lunched with her, and came over here. Say, are you going to the dance tomorrow night?"

"Where?" asked Lorene, thinking of him in connection with Agnes.

"It's at Agnes' home. Some of her college friends are going to be there. If you care to go, I'll come by for you."

"All right, I'll go," said Lorene, her heart throbbing painfully. How could he speak so casually of her going with him, when it would mean so much joy--and pain--to her?

"Well, I must be going, Rena; got an engagement with Agnes for tonight."

"Hope you have a good time," Lorene told him with a brave little smile.

"Spoke I shall," he answered carelessly.

With a wave of his hand he was gone. Sadly but without bitterness, Lorene watched him go. Here only wish was that Agnes would return his affections fully.

Menu For the Family

BY SISTER MARY

It's a thrifty custom to buy a whole ham if the housekeeper is sure none of it will be wasted. The choice middle cuts always are high when bought separately, but if the whole ham is purchased they are not considered. Butt end, hock end and center are regarded as a whole and priced at so much per pound regardless.

There are numberless ways of cooking ham, but I believe that the most meat can be served with less danger of the family becoming tired of the same meat if both the ends are boiled and then worked up into interesting dishes. The center can be cut in slices for broiling. Then the ends are put together and securely tied and treated as a whole ham. Plan how the entire ham is to be used and then there will be no chance for waste.

Although it is not absolutely necessary to soak all hams before boiling, I have found it advisable to do so even though I am sure of my brand and the saltiness of my particular ham. An over-night bath in clear fresh water cannot be harmful and will restore the moistness lost through curing. If ham has been over-salted, soaking is imperative to make it tender as well as palatable.

There are two precautions to keep in mind when broiling or boiling ham. Never cook a high-salted piece of meat rapidly. Bake in the case of broiling or sautéing, do not depend on it to finish its own fat entirely. Always begin to cook ham over a low fire and increase heat gradually.

water, bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer gently until tender. The time will vary, but it will take four or five hours for a twelve pound ham. Boiled ham can be used in innumerable appealing ways and is excellent to have in the ice-box for an "emergency."

When the whole joint is to be baked, it always is boiled first and then baked only long enough to brown the outside and season it.

Ham loaf, ham sandwiches, ham salad, ham croquettes, ham and chicken combinations, ham and veal combinations, plain sliced ham, broiled ham, ham, ham ramikins, ham and sweet potatoes, ham and pineapple--all these dishes and many others use boiled ham in their making and are delicious.

Ham scalloped with pineapple and sweet potatoes is a luncheon dish suitable for a most festive occasion.

Ham Scalloped With Pineapple and Sweet Potatoes

Boiled ham, 3 cups diced sweet potatoes, 1 small can sliced pineapple, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 tablespoons butter.

Cut ham in pieces convenient for serving. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in baking dish, add sweet potatoes, sprinkle with sugar and dot with remaining butter. Add ham and cover with slices of pineapple. Pour pineapple juice over the whole and cover dish. Bake in a moderately hot oven until potatoes are cooked, about 40 minutes. Remove cover and increase heat to lightly brown top of pineapple. Serve from baking dish.

SCHOOL NOTES

A contest is now being sponsored by the high school football team to raise money to apply on the uniforms that were bought last fall. A quilt has been bought, and each square is being sold for 25 cents and entitles the buyer of the square to have his name sewed on the square which are all numbered. This quilt will be given away some night in the near future when a program sponsored by the school will be given, and will be announced later in the Hope Star.

Much enthusiasm has been shown regarding this idea among the Blevins people. Ten dollars has been collected.

The Star office has had a number of inquiries regarding the contest now being waged among the different grades. Last week we carried a partial list of the names of the scholars that stood the highest in their classes and department for the week ending Feb. 7. This week we are able to give you a complete list of the scholars of the five, and you will notice there has been some changes made in the list. There are going to be some nice prizes such as baseballs, bats, gloves, roller skates, wrist watches, umbrellas, handkerchiefs, neckties, and just a lot of different articles. ## Store On Wheels Makes First Trip

New Style of Merchandising Carried On At Blevins.

Edgar Gorham, Blevins produce dealer, made his first trip of the season with his store on wheels last Tuesday, and starting on that date he will make his territory each week covering Redland township, and Wallaceburg township. This is the first time the writer has seen anything as unique. The truck body is made of four separate compartments, for groceries, dry goods, chickens and eggs. Mr. Gorham trades his merchandise for the farmers' produce which in return is sold to M. L. Nelson & Co. large produce buyers, and this same produce is distributed throughout the state sold to large hotels, cafes and stores.

This means real service to the farmer as it sometimes saves him from going to town when his services are imperatively needed at home. Mr. Gorham says this service really furthers two purposes, the consumer getting the fresh produce from the farm, and the farmer getting fresh merchandise from his truck.

Business Leaders Entertain Team

Banquet Held At Freyburger Hotel Saturday Night.

The Blevins high school football team was feted at a banquet last Saturday night by the business men of Blevins, cooperating with Conch Lay. The school board were in attendance.

The sweaters were presented by the coach. Short talks were made by the various business men, and members of the school board. Each talk was well received by the boys. The roster of the 1929 football team is as follows:

Loyal Bruce, Lester York, Harrel Husky, Bud Gorham, Chester Stephens, Oren Stephens, Herman Brown, Bill Foster, George Cummings, William Cummings, Webb Nelson, Howard Mahaffey, Clyde Selph, Monroe Yokem, Bryson Honca, K. B. Spears, and Dalton Smith. The material for 1930 looks good, and the coach is getting his schedule in good shape so the fans will see plenty of action when the whistle blows next fall.

County Agents

R. L. Bisch of Patmos R. 1 has recently purchased a Bostrow Farm level for running his terraces.

Bisch was able to get a special price of $18.77 delivered on this deal. These levels are the simplest and cheapest levels made and are sufficiently accurate for farm needs.

A. L. Beagle reports best results from fertilizer by using a home mixture consisting of about:

- 200 lbs. Sulfate of Ammonia
- 300 lbs. Superphosphate
- 50 lbs. Nitrate of Potash

(Use 200 to 400 lbs per acre)

He also states that some of the Ammonia may be applied to the cotton in 35 days of age as a side dressing.

Edison Honored on 83rd Birthday

"Their Own Desire" Has Two New Song Hits

Two new song hits are introduced in "Their Own Desire," Norma Shearer's all-talking picture which is now playing at the Seenger.

They are "Blue Is the Night," written by Fred Fisher, and "She's Got the Boy Friend Blues," by Reggie Montgomery and George Ward. In her last picture, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," Miss Shearer surprised her fans by playing the piano in an after-dinner recital scene. In the new film, the star again plays the piano using the "Blue Is the Night" number. "She's Got the Boy Friend Blues" is sung by a quartet.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH KNEIGHT, New York typist, married ARTHUR KNIGHT, assistant of the publisher's house where she works. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, and son, JUNIOR, 16. Tony despises Judith on a wild digress. Her father makes her apologize. When Junior comes home for Christmas holidays he is extremely satisfied.

ANDY CRAIG, whom Knight has dated, takes a position with the publishing house. He is in love with Tony and calls on her frequently. Tony tried to convince her father that Judith and Andy are crazy on an errand. She picks the pair into a compromising situation.

Tony catches on a flirtation with MICKEY, a hot little fellow, wealthy and married. This is repeated when the girl is 3 in. m. for reckless driving. Tony and her father quarrel over this but finally the girl is forgiven. Knight contrasts punctually and is dangerously ill. Junior comes home and before he leaves admits to Judith he has misjudged her. Knight's recuperation is slow and Judith is resentful because he seems to prefer Tony's company to hers.

A letter for Judith arrives and Tony takes it. Into she follows Judith on a trip into the city and sees her meet a young man. Next day Tony threatens to tell her father she is going steady and will go away for two weeks. Heaving Tony knows more than she does, Judith confesses her secret. She leaves a note for Arthur.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XL

"THAT'S all for today!" Arthur Knight looked up smiling at his secretary who sat with dictation notebook on one corner of his desk. "Well, it isn't going to be long now, I hope, before I'll be getting into the office myself and save you all these suburban trips."

Miss Tupper met Knight's smile with one in which maternal tenderness and the respect due an employer were mingled.

"I do hope you'll be back at your desk soon," she answered. "Everyone in the office is anxious to see you. But you know it isn't any bother at all for me to come out here. I—I don't mind in the least."

She had barely saved herself from adding that she enjoyed the intimacy of working with Arthur Knight here in his home. It would have been a truthful statement but she decided the words seemed too personal.

As though any thought at all of Kathryn Tupper's concerning her employer was not personal after she had worked with the man and for him for 15 years!

The private secretary had not forgiven Knight for marrying his attractive young wife, but she was like an indulgent elder viewing a willful child. She preferred to think his errors were the fault of others.

"That's all very well!" Knight assured her. "Just the same I know coming out here is a nuisance. Well, strictly in confidence, I've made Shephard promise to let me out of the house next week."

"Oh, I'm so glad!" There was no doubt of that, Miss Tupper's voice, more clearly than her words, expressed delight.

"Don't suppose I'll get into town the first day, but it's a start. Lord! Seems as though I've been cooped up in this house for 10 years!"

"You've always been so active," murmured the secretary. "But you must turn over a new leaf now!

Finds Less Drinking Among School Students

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)Indications that there has been less drinking among high school students under the prohibition laws than there was prior to their enactment were described today as being reflected in reports in a survey being made at the request of the Law Enforcement Commission.

J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education Association, said his organization had been asked by the commission to aid it and that early reports he had seen indicated there was less drinking by students under the dry laws than there had been before.

Crabtree said that while he did not feel at liberty to make public the reports, his familiarity with school conditions had led him to anticipate such a result. He said that he expected the findings of the survey to be made public soon.

"Clothes Sense" Has Dainty Pathe Star

Possession of an absolutely unimpeachable "clothes sense" is accredited to Constance Bennett, Pathe star, by Edward H. Griffith who directed her in "Rich People," the all-dialogue feature in which she makes her return to the screen after a retirement of four years spent in Europe. "Some women select clothes wisely; others wear them well. Constance Bennett does both."

"She has an almost uncanny flair for sensing the right combination of lines, color and material. Her gowns are always simple but it is simplicity which is the truest art. Every article in her wardrobe is beautiful but combines originality with conservatism rather than daring."

"I think there is no woman on either the stage or the screen whose taste in dress the young woman in private life would do so well to follow as Miss Bennett, for her costumes, down to the smallest accessory, denote good breeding and never touch on the bizarre or theatrical."

In "Rich People," which comes to the New Grand theatre Monday and Tuesday, the garments worn by Miss Bennett are copies of original Paris models which she brought back with her from France as part of her private wardrobe.

FELT SO WEAK, OUT OF HEART

Stronger After She Had Taken Cardui; Says Nervousness Disappeared.

Bristol, Va.—"About a year ago, I found my health was giving way," writes Mrs. L. E. Jones, of this city. Mrs. Jones says she suffered from being very weak.

"When I would walk only a short distance up hill, my knees would tremble," she says, "and I would have to sit down."

"I was so run-down and tired I was all out of heart, and felt like crying all the time."

"I knew I would have to take something to give me strength to keep me going. I read about Cardui, and the good it had done others, so I thought it might help me. At any rate it would not hurt to give it a trial."

"After I had taken the Cardui, I was so much better and stronger, and the nervousness had disappeared. Now I am recommending Cardui to my friends."
